THE POWER OF POETS. SCENE 1 INT. IN A FRONT ROOM. NIGHT TIME

The room is lit by the t.v but also with a faint bulb on the ceiling. The walls are painted a coffee colour. The room is minimalistic with nothing but a t.v, a settee and cream curtains.

There is a man sat on the settee watching t.v. with his pet cat.

The man walks in and turns on the t.v. whilst the cat jumps onto the settee. As the man reaches the settee, he moves the cushion before sitting down.

The man is stroking the cat and watching t.v.

SETTEE:

"The man on the settee stroking his cat and watching tv"..

SETTEE:

"It isn't me... I am a settee"

(cont'd)

"I could have been the man the cat or the t.v. However, this is my poem."

SETTEE:

"I choose to be the settee. Such is the power of poets".

The man goes to switch off the t.v.
